- S Starting from the High Street car park, head along Pool St, past the red post office box. Follow this road until you reach a fork with a telephone pole and a blue Cronfa/Coastal route waymark. Turn L at this fork to follow the waymarked route. Continue uphill until you reach a road with a sign for Penrhyneddraeth, a railway track, and a bench. Take the path signposted to your right which heads along a single track road.
- 1 Head straight through the red gate. Take the next R waymarked Cronfa/Coastal circular which heads through a wooden gate into a woodland alongside the tracks. Continue until the fork and then take the L hand path, leaving the Cronfa/Coastal circular route. Turn R when you hit the gravel path. At the next fork, follow the waymarked route R, across the stream. Take the next L which leads off the main track and up into the woods.
- 2 The path will lead you out of the forest and into a field with a hill on your right (Moel Y Llys). Continue to the road, turning R to follow this for around 500m, and then take the first footpath on your R, leading back into a woodland. You'll reach a fork at a dry stone wall. Take the stony track to the L. Turn R when you reach the main track around the reservoir and then take the next path uphill to the R. Go straight at the next fork towards the cabins.
- 3 Continue straight at the next fork to continue following the Cronfa/Coastal route. Follow this route until you reach the railway crossing. Cross carefully and continue downhill. At the sign for Coed Cae Fali, take the L hand path and follow down towards the road/lay-by. Turn R and continue along the wooded path to the next lay-by. Here, cross the road carefully and turn R, walking along the verge by the stream. Cross the next stile on your L and head through the kissing gate across the stream. Turn R up the track.
- 4 Once you reach the road, turn R. Follow this road until it opens out onto a main road beside Cooke's industrial estate. Turn R at the main road and then right again opposite Penrhyneddraeth train station. Cross over the road onto the high street and continue straight to return to the start location.
