- Starting from the RSPB car park, take the path beside the house, which heads towards the sea before curving off to the L. Head L at the fork, following the fence line. Keep L at the next fork. The path will then join a track. Head R on the track past the house and then take the signposted bridleway off to the R Continue straight, past the interpretation panel, until you meet the coastal path. Turn R and follow the coast path for around 1.5 km.
- The coast path will lead you past several rocky bays and headlands before South Stack lighthouse comes into view. The path will eventually level out at a rocky junction with a route waymarked to your R. Look for the wooden waymark posts which lead you back to the start location.
